Perhaps the most easily overlooked is your own handwriting. Oh, how I long to transform my regular, easygoing ("boring!") script into a jagged, expressive scrawl, or the curly-girly fanciful hand that comes naturally to others. I can too, with practice. Right? Thank that word.

FILL A SPACE IN A BEAUTIFUL WAY. —GEORGIA O'KEEFE

...ing it is pretty much impossible to
... confined in a canvas or a studio.
... in the clothes you wear and the
... you keep. Aside from the likeli-
... closet or bedroom that strains
... of art supplies. I'd wager rather than assaulting them, as I initially feared it might.

(Well, I do keep the chair upholstered in Chinese dragon fabric as far across the room as possible from the monkey curtains, because who needs that drama?)
Think of decorating your home with other people's artwork as a karmic investment. You may feel a pinch
